1. Chlorophyll a and Chlorophyll b were determined by the method of Arar and Collins (1971) using a Shimadzu 1010 spectrophotometer. The concentration of chlorophylls was expressed as $\mu\text{g mL}^{-1}$ of the sample.

This is a high-contrast, black and white image showing a vertical strip of material, possibly a book binding or a piece of paper. The central part is a dark, textured band, flanked by lighter, speckled areas. The overall appearance is grainy and abstract, with no discernible text or figures.

A high-contrast, black and white image showing a vertical, textured surface, possibly a book cover or a piece of fabric, with a dark, irregular shape on the right side. The image is heavily degraded with noise and artifacts, making it difficult to discern specific details. The texture appears as a series of vertical lines and bands of varying shades of gray. The dark shape on the right is irregular and appears to be a shadow or a part of the object being imaged.
